ATTACKS U. S. FOREIGN POLICY

G. O. P. Leader Brands Roosevelt Program Example of Mismanagement

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA June 18—The Republican national convention's committee on resolutions committee was told today by Dr. Glenn Frank that the Roosevelt administration's handling of foreign affairs has been "more of an example of gross mismanagement" than in dealing with domestic problems.

Appearing before the policy-forming committee Dr. Frank stood by the report made last February by a special Republican committee of 200 named to formulate the "basis" for a party platform. The special committee headed by Dr. Frank, recommended non-involvement in "other people's wars."

Dr. Frank was applauded as he expressed belief that the nation's trend and the desire of the Republican party was to keep the United States free from this war but also free from a stupid sterile and bat blind kind of isolation.

He termed President Roosevelt's speech at Charlottesville Va. last week—the speech in which the President accused Italy of plunging a dagger into France's back—an informal and personal declaration of war.

Frank declared himself in favor of "the utmost material assistance to the Allies through the normal channels of trade  we are on the side of the democracies. On the other hand the people are under no delusion that the United States can either police the world or inject itself as a factor in the almost continuous wars of Europe and Asia."

The Frank committee in a 30,000-word document entitled "A Program for a Dynamic America" asserted "the first concern of our foreign policy must be to protect the security and welfare of the American people keep out of the present war in Europe and build up defenses adequate to protect the western hemisphere."

Prior to appearing before the Republican national convention's resolutions committee today Dr. Frank in an interview declared if he were writing the program committee report now he probably would "not change six sentences in it."

And that goes for the sections on foreign policy as well as those on domestic policies," he added.

Dr. Frank asserted both the foreign and domestic situations were "changing so rapidly that no political party today can forecast in detail every move it may have to make to meet changing conditions."

Berlin Signals Hard Times Ahead For French People

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Berlin was radiating the spirit of hard terms for France today.

The news [illegible] had impressed which I have been carrying about for 21 years—an impression which came from the look on the drawn, grey faces of the German envoys as they signed the treaty of Versailles.

There was a grim expression of defiance which advertised louder than words that some day they would strike back. That picture has been constantly in my mind since France signalled that she wanted peace.

It perhaps fits this general theme that Hitler should have chosen Munich his favorite city for his conference with Mussolini to write the fate of the French empire.

Munich Long Remembered

The world won't soon forget that Munich was the incubator which fostered the Hitlerian ambition to expand Germany's lebensraum (living-space).

The only thing which appears definite about the terms at this juncture is that the basis of an armistice will be the complete elimination of France as a fighting factor.

France has declared that she won't accept dishonorable peace terms. All indications are however that she must be prepared for terribly hard conditions. It will be passing strange if Hitler doesn't dismember the empire.

France certainly is faced with heart break and in this hour of trial one instinctively thinks of her premier who has taken the wheel in this crisis—Marshal Henri Petain.

Not in a blue moon would you be able to count the thousands of Europe's living heroes many of them newly made upon the battlefields of this war but of this host the bravest of them all to my mind is that grand old soldier.

No Courage Greater

There could be no courage greater than that displayed by this 84 year-old military genius in allowing himself to be drafted to serve as the premier who must present the capitulation of his beloved France to Hitler.

It would be comparatively easy to declare—"We shall fight to the last man." But the word "surrender" comes hard to the lips of the defender of Verdun who sent echoing down through the generations the historic battlecry "They shall not pass."

In his broadcast to his people, announcing that France must sue for peace, the marshal said in his simple but dignified language:

"I have given myself to France to better her situation at this grave hour."

Thus the hero of Verdun took upon his aged shoulders the burden of surrender.

Salute to a brave soldier!

URGES BIGGEST FLEET FOR U. S.

Admiral Stark Recommends Four Billion Dollar Expansion To Add 200 Ships.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON June 18—Admiral Harold R. Stark unexpectedly recommended to congress today at $4,000,000,000 expansion of the navy to give this country the greatest fleet the world has ever seen.

Testifying before the house naval committee after a closed session, the chief of naval operations said the proposed program would add about 200 fighting ships to the navy and 1,250,000 tons to the navy's authorized combat tonnage. That tonnage now amounts to about 1,724,450 tons, he added.

Stark's public testimony on the new proposal was confined to barest details but, in response to question by Chairman Vinson, Democrat of Georgia, he said he considered it "essential" to the defense of the United States and insular possessions as well as the defense of the Monroe doctrine.

Army Streamlined

The expanding regular army added two new streamlined divisions to its roster today as congress went to work on the $1,200,000,000 navy bill that would give the United States the mightiest fleet in the history of seapower.

The new divisions — heavily armed and completely motorized—will give the army a total of eight streamlined units, each designed to strike with greater speed and power than the ponderous old-style divisions.

Secretary of War Woodring, announcing plans for the new divisions last night, said their troops would be drawn from the 38,000 enlistments for which congress provided funds recently when it

Report Agreement Reached On Terms for Surrender

PEACE TERMS ARE DECIDED BY DICTATORS

No Indication of Price To France Given; Throngs Cheer Hitler and Duce.

By The Associated Press

MUNICH, June 18—Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini agreed tonight on the terms on which they propose to grant peace to France at the Munich immediately after [illegible] of their conference [illegible] the famed Fuehrerhaus.

There was no immediate indication [illegible] would be the price France must pay for cessation of fighting, NDB the official news agency issued a brief communique at the end of the four hour conference.

The Fuehrer and Duce [illegible] agreed upon the [illegible] of the government's [illegible] the French demand for an armistice.

The meeting of the two axis leaders began at 4 p. m. (8 a. m. Marion time) in this city birthplace of Nazism and scene of many historical events of the last two decades.

Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Ciano of Italy arrived at Munich at 3 p. m. (8 a. m. Marion time) today for their conference with Adolf Hitler on the French request for peace terms.

By The Associated Press

MUNICH June 18—Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Count Ciano of Italy arrived at Munich at 3 p. m. (8 a. m. Marion time) today for their conference with Adolf Hitler on the French request for peace terms.

An hour later they sat down at a conference table with Hitler to discuss the fate of France.

Mussolini's train enroute to this former capital of appeasement, passed through village after village decked in the German and Italian colors.

At Innsbruck, Il Duce, wearing a field gray uniform, left the train briefly to review an honor company.

Hitler arrived first entering the city with all the pomp of a present-day Napoleon while the church bells rang and the people cried out their hails.

Mussolini, the number 2 partner in an axis which thus far has not lost a major engagement in this war, arrived just three hours later.

Hard Bargain for France

They met in an atmosphere which suggested that the bargain might be a hard one for France. For while nothing was said officially here and there was every prospect that the policy of silence would go on for hours, authorized German sources had thus declared:

"France must understand clearly that the vanquished cannot make demands!"

It seemed likely that Munich—as it was on another occasion now more than a year ago when Britain and France decided not to fight for Czechoslovakia—would be only a place for action, and that what was done [illegible] be announced not here but [illegible] Berlin and [illegible]

Joachim [illegible] German [illegible] during [illegible]

Terms Not Yet Revealed

There was no immediate indication what the terms would be—Berlin newspapers said confidently they would be harsh—or whether they would be acceptable under France's insistence on an honorable peace.

The German radio reported from Munich that Hitler and Mussolini have agreed on the French request for an armistice.

Marshal Petain, by contrast, said in his appeal to France's fighting forces that peace negotiations had not even begun.

An indication that the axis powers' price may prove too stiff for French honor was seen in a French radio report that the republic's cabinet met today to consider not only diplomacy but also the problem of supplies.

Told Not To Quit Yet

The Petain-Weygand order told the battle-weary French Poilus not to lay down their arms until an armistice is signed and sealed.

In London, Prime Minister Churchill told a cheering house of commons that any German invasion of England would likely be "drowned in the sea or blown to pieces attempting to land."

In effect, Churchill challenged Hitler to try to storm the British Isles, declaring:

Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island or lose the war."

Churchill proclaimed the beginning of "the battle for Britain" and said defeat would plunge even the United States "into the abyss of a new dark age."

Rome Hits British Influence

In Rome, authoritative Fascists said Hitler and Mussolini planned a separate peace for France on terms that would break British influence forever on continental Europe.

Hitler arrived first at Munich, riding through dense crowds shouting "Heil, Hitler!"—a triumphant fuehrer whose conquests already rival the exploits of Alexander the Great and Napoleon.

Il Duce arrived several hours later at the Bavarian city which saw the birth of Nazism and its abortive "beer cellar putsch" in 1923.

While the two axis leaders met, the Nazi high command reported new sweeping successes by German armies in France and the bombing of a fleet of Allied transports and other ships in the Loire river estuary—likely point of embarkation for the withdrawal of British troops from France.

Many Ships Reported Sunk

The high command said more than 170,000 tons were destroyed or severely damaged in "the biggest air raid effect" of the war.

As France still fought with desperate fury and rallied 850,000 troops to a new defense line near the junction of the Saone and Doubs rivers, north of Chalons-Sur-Saone, the German press clamored for Nazis to [illegible] to avenge the 21-year-old "humiliation" of the Versailles treaty.

Hitler's own newspaper, the Volkischer Beobachter, declared bitterly:

"We remember with the [illegible] hours of the [illegible] Weygand [illegible] in the [illegible] were [illegible]

Sees Battle of Britain About To Begin As French Resistance Collapses.

By The Associated Press

LONDON June 18 — Prime Minister Winston Churchill declared that the French would be crushing [illegible] their future unless they continued the war, but he added that the battle of France is over, the battle of Britain is about to begin.

If we lose it the whole world including the United States of America will sink into the abyss of a new dark age, he told the house of commons.

The prime minister declared that Britain could not relieve France of her treaty obligations to continue the war.

He said in fact it is not yet certain that all fatal resistance by France will come to an end—although he did not state in what form that resistance might continue.

1,250,000 Under Arms

However, he told the commons and people of his nation Britain will have 1,250,000 of her own men under arms, dominions armies on her soil and a navy was prepared to meet invasion.

The navy he said could not pretend to prevent raids by 5,000 or 10,000 men on a dark night or a foggy morning but he predicted with confidence that these invaders might well be "drowned in the sea or blown to pieces while trying to land."

But Churchill let the nation know in stark language what he felt would happen if the battle of Britain were lost.

The new dark age' which would come he said would be made more sinister and perhaps more prolonged by the lights of a perverted science."

Upon this battle" he cried "depends the survival of Christian civilization. Hitler knows he will have to break us in this island or lose the war."

The one great question he said was "Can we break Hitlers air weapon"

Attack Coming Soon

The nation, Churchill warned, will face air attack soon.

He added, however, that "no invasion on a scale beyond the capacity of our airforces to crush immediately is likely to take place from the air until our air force has been definitely overpowered."

The prime minister told his

PETAIN ORDERS FIGHT TO GO ON

Premier Tells Forces Peace Negotiations Not Yet Begun; Await Nazi Reply.

By The Associated Press

BORDEAUX, FRANCE, June 18—Marshal Petain ordered all French soldiers and sailors on land, sea and in the air tonight to keep on fighting—even while he awaited Adolf Hitler's reply to his plea for an honorable peace

Peace negotiations have not even begun, the 84-year-old premier told his men

"The duty of all is to continue resistance" he said

(Further indication that peace may be near for France was seen in a Reuters-British news agency—report attributed to the French radio to the effect that the French cabinet in its meeting today was considering the problem of supplies as well as that of diplomacy)

The order to continue resistance was made after reports were circulated among the French that German troops were raising the white flag to be able to advance without fighting French enchmen said the Germans apparently intended to make French troops believe an armistice already is in effect

Forces Notified

Petain's office receiving reports of such incidents declared that "all French and Allied combatants on land and sea and in the air are notified that no armistice and no suspension of fighting have occurred

The exhausted French armies presumably were still fighting a losing battle

The French disclosed that Valerio Valeri the papal nuncio had been in communication with Italy on France's behalf with the aim of halting the French Italian war

Overtures to Italy

French overtures to Germany were being relayed through the Spanish ambassador to France and the Madrid government

While Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were debating Premier Petain's request for peace Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin told the French people and the world by radio last night that "if we are given the choice between resistance and honor the French army and the whole French people will know what to do

As he spoke the German legions were plunging still deeper into France on virtually all fronts but the French army still resisted especially at Orleans 70 miles south of Paris and in the region of La Charite Sur Loire a full 120 miles southeast of the capital

(The Germans reported they have taken Orleans)

At both of these places which are on the Loire river fighting was violent according to last night's communique of the French high command

"At all points of contact said the communique our troops still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag

Baudoin said we are ready to lay down arms if we can get an honorable peace but we are never ready to accept shameful conditions which mean the end of the spiritual freedom of our people"

Argentina Calls For U. S. Aid To Hold Independence

By The Associated Press

BUENOS AIRES June 18—Informed Argentine sources declared today that the South American nations dependent on substantial export trade balance for both financial and political stability needed material aid from the United States to avert domination by totalitarian powers in Europe

These sources said the time had arrived when the United States must choose between extending far-reaching financial aid to these economic victims of the European war or watching these nations fall into economic systems of old world totalitarian nations

Argentina like Brazil Chile Uruguay and other South American republics has seen her export markets disrupted and some of them eliminated by the spread of war in Europe these sources pointed out

These comments came as news arrived from Washington of a White House plan for an inter American cartel or sales agency to handle western hemisphere exports

(Under this plan a foreign purchaser would have to deal with this single agency rather than shop around for a bargain among the various countries

(Experts of the United States department of commerce said the plan would protect the American republics against being forced to accept barter deals such as those offered by Germany and Italy)

Argentines said this nation provides the best example of the peril to pan-American democratic solidarity in the present economic problem

Argentine is one of the strongest democracies below the equator, they declared but economic instability is an ever-present threat to her security

Failure of Argentina to maintain her economic position through United States' assistance would mean, they said that as soon as the European war ends this country would be subjected to the domination of German economy because of inability to market her products elsewhere

Argentina with an important outout of wheat, corn meat, hides and wool in normal times, has lost 30 per cent of her markets abroad

CRESTLINE VET CANDIDATE FOR G A R COMMANDER

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS O June 18—Ohio's white-haired Boys in Blue held the first business session of the 74th annual state encampment today but already they are agreed on one thing—this will not be their last meeting

The nine Ohio grand army of the Republic members registered for the convention are just a little tired of last convention' talk

"We've been hearing this last convention business for the last 10 years' Thomas Ridenouer of Crestline senior vice commander asserted Ridenouer 94 is the only candidate for state commander for the coming year He was wounded in the left arm at Chickamauga

The annual parade will be held tomorrow evening

LEGISLATURE

$333 333 33 for relief loans to cities and counties

A top operating $2 000 000 (half of it federal funds) for old age pensions during the remainder of the year which on the present scale of $23 a month average payments would permit the addition of an estimated 14 500 persons to the rolls

Creating a separate ballot for the presidential and vice presidential candidates in the November election thus severing them from the state ballot

Increasing the maximum old age pension payments from $30 a month to $40 effective March 31 1941 although the measure made no provision for the necessary additional funds and amending the aid for dependent children act to release for use between $800 000 and $900 000 in federal funds now frozen in the state treasury

The sixth bill enabling local governments to fund poor relief debts incurred before Jan 1, 1940 was recommended for passage by the senate taxation committee

The house finance committee unanimously recommended passage of the $30 relief bill and McCulloch said it probably would come to a vote late today

There was some opposition to the bill increasing pensions the speaker said adding that thorough hearings would be held These he said would take no more than two days

The ballot separation bill was reported out by the senate elections committee while the senate finance committee reported out the pension bill Both probably will be voted on late today

Sen Walter Nickels Republican of Tuscarawas sought to amend the pension bill to provide a 10 per cent increase in allowances for food and clothing but his proposal was defeated

While leaders of the senate Republican organization reported complete harmony house Republicans were not so fortunate

Defeat Rankles

Some of the nine Republican representatives from Hamilton county (Cincinnati) were piqued because their fellow townsman Rep William H Deddens was not chosen speaker pro tem succeeding J Harry McGregor of West Lafayette now in congress

Although Deddens practically had been conceded the position in informed quarters a first term dark horse from the rural bloc —Rep Harold W Houston (R Champaign)—was chosen The vote was Houston 56 Deddens 23

Should the Hamilton county Republicans register their ire against nation by voting against the ballot splitting bill they might prevent its enactment as an emergency measure effective immediately In this event the Democrats could obtain a referendum and keep it from going into effect for the Nov 5 election

Democrats indicated they would attempt to amend the administration's ballot bill and divorce also the candidates for U S senator from the state ticket

This theoretically would reduce the strength which Mayor Harold H Burton of Cleveland Republican candidate for U S senator gives to his party's state ticket

Bricker Backs Separation

Governor Bricker speaking before a joint session of the senate and house declared the national and state tickets should be separated to make possible a free expression of the voters' judgment

A former governor with a record has been nominated on the other ticket he said " the people of Ohio are competent to judge as between the administration of my predecessor and this one

With the tickets separated Republicans believe former Gov Davey the Democratic candidate for governor would benefit less from the popularity of Franklin D Roosevelt should the President seek reelection

The governor said that an acute reduction of WPA necessitated the additional relief appropriation The $1 460 000 will increase to 50 per cent the state's share of relief costs for the last half of 1939 The state already has provided about 40 per cent

Bricker said that barring a national economic debacle there should be no new state taxes in 1941 42 and added that when we have paid the debt we inherited there can be a reduction in taxes

Rep Kenneth M Petri (D-Crawford) proposed a constitutional amendment to bar un-American political parties from the ballot but the speaker ruled his resolution was out of order

SPANISH WAR VETERANS MARCH IN AKRON TODAY

By The Associated Press

AKRON O June 18—Ohio's Spanish War veterans and auxiliary organizations paraded in connection with their 42nd annual encampment here

Approximately 1 000 delegates and guests heard Judge Edward Mathias of the state supreme court warn of fifth column threats to America in an address at yesterday's sessions

They called us flag wavers five years ago when we saw the danger of the fifth column advancing he declared

CHURCHILL

listeners to remember that from 200 to 250 ships would be needed to carry even five divisions of Germans across the channel

Declaring the advantage of the defenders will be very great he said Britain hoped to improve on the ratio of three or four German planes down for every British plane lost which he said was established over Dunkerque at the end of the battle of Flanders

Churchill told commons that seven-eighths of the British troops sent to France a 350 000 out of 400 000 men now are back in England

Behind these stand half a million local defense volunteers he said

Canadians Withdrawn

We also have dominions armies here Churchill added

Canadians landed in France have been safely withdrawn

In view of the troops now in this country invasion of this country would require hostile armies on a very large scale the prime minister went on

And we have a navy'

In the final battle for France now lost Churchill asserted there were only three British divisions because of the time it took to replace supplies and equipment lost in the disaster of Flanders

We sent every man we could to France as fast as we could reequip and transport their formations' he said

Without the concentration of men and materials now in England Churchill explained we cannot face what lies before us

Churchill told commons that the entire British expeditionary force in France was thrown out of action when the French high command failed to withdraw the northern armies from Belgium at the moment they knew the French front was broken at Sedan and on the Meuse river

The delay entailed a loss of 15 or 16 French divisions Churchill said

Calls for Free Loans

Sir Kingsley Wood chancellor of the exchequer today appealed to all who could to make interest free war loans to the government

The loans would be repaid three months after conclusion of a peace treaty Sir Kingsley said

Churchill in a radio speech last night said that what has happened in France makes no difference to Britain's faith and purpose

We shall defend our island home he declared 'and with the British empire around us we shall fight on unconquerable until the curse of Hitler is lifted from the brows of mankind

The air ministry said the RAF heavily bombarded military objectives over a wide area in the Rhineland, Ruhr and Northwestern Germany last night

'Early today an enemy destroyer off the Frisian Islands was bombed and hit amidships,' the report added

Operated by fountain pen type dry batteries and sighted like a camera a photometric exposure meter for photographers has been developed that can measure the light of a match 100 feet away.

REPUBLICANS REJECT RECESS BY CONGRESS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON June 18—Democratic leaders abandoning hope of congressional adjournment by Saturday encountered today a Republican rebuff to a compromise proposal for a recess until Aug 15

I will not agree to any recess beyond three days said Senator McNary (R Ore) the minority leader who has joined others of his party in demanding that congress stay in session during the European war crisis

He pointed out under the constitution neither chamber can quit for more than three days at a time without the other's consent

The Democrats object in proposing the recess was to permit congressmen to take part in the Republican convention June 24 and the Democratic convention July 15 They argued that the immediate work could be cleaned up this week

The senate pushed ahead with the $1 007 000 000 defense tax bill with debate centering chiefly on demands for larger tax increase than those voted by the house and the senate finance committee

The senate agreed on a new schedule of amusement taxes starting with 10 per cent on 10 cent admission tickets

A house approved increase in tobacco levies including a one cent boost in the present tax of six cents a package on cigarets was eliminated increased army strength to 280 000 men.

FLEET

Legislation for an even larger standing army already is half way through congress Unanimously and without debate the house voted yesterday to move the strength up to 400 000 men—25 000 more than requested by Gen George C Marshall chief of staff

Plans for More

With senate approval expected for an increase of at least that size General Marshall has plans ready for a ninth streamlined division and the second of two highly mechanized divisions, similar to the German panzer divisions used in the European war

The new fleet expansion bill authorizing the construction of 84 more fighting ships during the next four years, was promised quick action as the house naval committee opened hearings.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga) putting passage of the bill in the 'must' category declared that 'world conditions make it absolutely imperative that the navy be built up as rapidly as possible"

The program representing a fleet expansion of 23 5 per cent envisions a 1944 navy twice the size it was in 1938 In that year a 20 per cent increase was voted Last week congress finished action on an additional 11 per cent expansion Completion of the whole huge undertaking would give the nation a fleet of 618 ships.

NEW DEMANDS ON FINNS

NEW YORK June 18 — The Soviet Union is expected to make new demands on Finland within the next few days NBC's London representative Fred Bate said in a broadcast today

Bate said it was expected that Russia would demand the Aaland islands in the Gulf of Bothnia

MUNICH

tween Caen and Le Mans, in northwest France

Far more than 100 000 prisoners were taken yesterday alone the communique said along with vast amounts of war booty

Fighting continued meanwhile on the French front as the German army carried out its orders to smash the last vestiges of armed resistance but Nazis said that capitulation practically has been carried out

Reports from Switzerland said the French had succeeded in withdrawing another 50 000 troops from the Alsace - Lorraine pocket bringing to 350 000 the total snatched from the Nazi trap

The German air force had its biggest day of the war yesterday sinking or damaging 170 000 tons of enemy shipping at the mouth of the Loire river authorized Berlin sources said

France Offered Union

Great Britain stoutly proclaimed her own continued resistance to the foe and disclosed she had offered to unite with France as one nation in the last gloomy hours before France chose a bitter request for peace

The British offer apparently was rejected since it meant continuation of the struggle and the Paul Reynaud cabinet fell Sunday night as a result

Although France has sued for peace Foreign Minister Paul Baudoin declared that it must be an honorable one

The Bordeaux correspondent of the London Daily Mail reported today that the French Mediterranean fleet under orders of Admiral Jean Darlan had inflicted heavy losses on the Italian navy in a major engagement but the time of the battle was not clear and there were no details

Whether Germany will be able to take over the French navy is a notable question on which the future course of the war well may hinge

Germans in Berlin said they believed Britain had spirited off much of the French fleet for use in continuing the war

French Still Fighting

The French command issued a communique last night declaring all the French armies still are fighting with the same bravery for the honor of the flag after 13 days of almost continuous retreat from the rushing Nazis

A French military spokesman admitted however that the French had been divided into four segments by the German spearheads which disrupted the confused front

Possibly indicative of the terms France might expect was a German radio broadcast early today which said

The time has come for them —the French—to take what they once gave Germany

In reference to the terms which Germany will impose on France the time has arrived for Germans to remember Compiegne (where the World war armistice was signed) at which time Marshal Foch not only dictated the most bestial terms but also humiliated Germany into the dust.

We are now able to say that no living German has forgotten it or ever will forget it.

Possible fate of France's western hemisphere possessions was highlighted by the United States senate's adoption yesterday of a resolution that this country would not acquiesce in any transfer of western hemisphere possessions from one non-American nation to another

The house was expected to vote on the resolution today

Parking Meters Solve Many Problems for Zanesville

Survey Shows They're Popular with Virtually All Citizens Despite Early Antagonism.

"If the Marion people are the same as the people who live in Zanesville, then parking meters will be highly successful when they are installed on Marion's uptown streets in the next month or so.

This is indicated by the news reports of the results of a survey made by Mansfield city officials to determine public reaction in Zanesville. They reported that in Zanesville where 325 meters have been in operation for nearly two years the reaction was almost entirely favorable—and not only from the standpoint of city officials. Motorists, truck drivers, businessmen—almost to a man they now overflow with praise for the devices.

Marion city officials late this week are expected to announce specifications for the approximately 160 parking meters, which council recently decided to lease on a year's trial. When the specifications are agreed upon, the city will then advertise for bids from various meter manufacturers. Safety-Service Director Clyde C. Caldwell predicted installation of the meters should begin late in July, if nothing goes wrong.

Year's Experience Reported

The results of the first full year of operation of Zanesville's 325 meters are encouraging to Marion officials, who were somewhat hesitant to risk a storm of public wrath in putting a "pay-as-you-park" system into effect.

In brief, here are the highlights of Zanesville's first year of experience with meters:

1. Traffic congestion cleared away 75 per cent.

2. Double parking virtually eliminated.

3. First year's revenue $21,000.

4. Only one mounted patrolman needed to check parking, compared with four and five previously.

5. General public opinion, highly unfavorable for the first 60 days or so, is now just as favorable toward the meters.

6. Revenue for 1940 is estimated at $26,025. This will be diistributed as follows: Police payroll, $20,200 (which eases the strain on a city's general operating fund); debt retirement, $3,325; maintenance and incidentals, $1,000; inspection, $1,500.

7. Where parking space in the business districts was a rarity, now it can be found on almost any of the previously jammed streets at any hour.

Opposition to meters when installed has practically disappeared, Service Director A. S. Herzer of Zanesville said recently.

Businessmen Want More

Since the first installations, signed petitions have been received from Zanesville businessmen three different times and as a result plans are under way to establish additional parking meter zones, he reported.

Police Chief C. H. Courtney also speaks highly of the meters, declaring they have solved "three fourths of the traffic problem, in particular eliminating the hazard of double parking."

Another aspect of interest to the motorist is that a large percentage of parking is done on time paid for by a driver who had parked previously and departed before his time had expired.

Charles Ross, Zanesville city market master who supervises maintenance of the meters, said that as many as 10 autos have parked in the same space before the one hour of time, costing a nickel had expired. He commented that the time was paid for, so the city doesn't care how many people park in the space.

He also added that Zanesville people now feel as strongly in favor of the meters as they did against them when installed.

"There would be a battle if we attempted to take them out now," he said.

A survey revealed that a majority of merchants who protested that the meters would make their customers pay for the privilege of coming in town now have been "won over."

Opinion Analyzed

A cross section of public opinion on the meters is reported as follows from Zanesville:

Delivery service manager—Deliveries are made in half the time needed before meters were installed. Meters relieved congestion and double parking by truck drivers.

Bus driver—Meters help maintain schedules.

Haberdashery proprietor—They accommodate the quick shopper.

Druggist—Doesn't like them because he himself can't park outside all day long, but concedes that they help business.

Shoe store manager—A convenience to customers.

Department store clerk—Parking meters brought about enforcement of downtown parking ordinances through the revenue they bring in.

Dentist — Relieved Saturday night congestion in "a Saturday night town" (which Marion might also be called.)

Grocer—Even the salesmen can now find a place to park.

Jeweler—They keep loafing motorists off the streets and give people who want to come in and buy something a chance to find parking space.

Marion officials are following the same plan which Zanesville authorities took. They are making a study of various types of meters to determine which will be best for Marion.

One-Hour Type

Zanesville chose the one-hour automatic type, costing $56.50 each. They were installed in August 1938 on a "three-month-trial." By January of 1939 the motorists of the city had decided the meters were a fine thing, officials said.

Later 94 meters of the two-hour type were installed and since then two more additions have been made.

Maintenance costs in the last year were $596. The weekly collection averaged $600. Incidentally, only an average of two "slugs" a week were slipped into the meters by chiseling motorists. Criminals have not attempted to hi-jack the meters and even the children of the town don't bother them.

Two men are needed to handle operation and supervision of the meters. One is a policeman, who makes the rounds, checking on violations. The other man winds the meters and make collections.

The patrolling officer gives tags to local motorists who make a habit of overparking. The fine is $1.

Out-of-town motorists who may overpark or neglect to put in a nickel find a red tag on their cars when they return. The tag merely advises them they do not have to report to the police department, but merely insert a nickel in the slot.

Zanesville, Toledo and Cleveland are among Ohio cities with meters so far. Columbus, Akron and Mansfield are among cities considering installations.

More Probabilities To Be Faced

FRANCE'S collapse though anticipated for many days, is too stupendous a disaster to be comprehended. The task must be left to historians. The whole war situation has become so complex that even those with access to complete information need no longer apologize for inability to keep abreast of it. At such a time men do what needs to be done and let comprehension wait on the future.

There is one probability to be faced immediately, now that France is gone. It is the ultimate collapse of Great Britain. The British intend to carry on the war alone and undoubtedly will do so as long as they are able to resist. Their determination however does not alter the probability that British ability to resist on their island will not prevail against Germany's ability to attack from the mainland. Attack will be difficult, but by no means impossible.

Not only is Britain hopelessly outnumbered but its former disadvantage in equipment is increased by the French surrender and Italy's participation in the war. It may be estimated hopefully that the British will be able to defend their island longer than the Germans expect them to but even Pollyanna could not envision defenders holding out indefinitely in such circumstances. With no allies left and with none in sight anywhere on the continent the long term certainly is either outright defeat or some attempt to make the best of a bad situation.

This might take the form of a plan whereby the seat of the British empire would be abandoned in favor of a new center of administration probably in Canada. In this way the British empire could be held together after a fashion and reconstituted on the basis of British tradition and seapower emanating from a focal point in the new world. It would not be the empire of tradition but the result of a salvage operation in an emergency.

Such a move would bring the war to the American continent on the assumption that Britain would continue to fight with its navy. The truth of the matter is that the war already has reached this continent last week a Canadian warship captured an Italian freighter in the St. Lawrence river, and the Graf Spee incident off the coast of South America already had introduced war in that hemisphere.

Second Bird

IF THE problem hadn't been hidden by high feelings, discussion of the national labor relations act would be concerned with the type of agency it has set up as well as the labor board itself. Two birds could be hit with the same stone.

Many of the shortcomings charged to the board have less to do with labor policy than with general administrative policy. As an experiment in streamlined administration— a new instrument of public power —the board has left much to be desired. It is too bad that its defects should be attributed to its connection with organized labor.

The same defects have cropped out though less sensationally in some other "new instruments of public power" which embodied the same principle of lumping administrative legislative and judicial functions under the same authority. Tennessee valley administration and securities exchange commission both have been criticised.

They too have offended with what looked like high-handedness to those who had nothing to gain and something to lose. They have sailed close to the shoals of a government ruled by men instead of by laws. They have illustrated the grave dangers of establishing political authority with loosely limited power. They have though not to the same extent as the labor relations board been a source of friction between groups of citizens.

New responsibilities of government it is said, demand new agencies adjusted to modern conditions. The labor board was a new type of agency. It should be examined not only from the viewpoint of those interested in labor policy but from the viewpoint of equitable administration. If the wider view had been taken the revisions approved by the house of representatives last week and doomed to be pigeonholed by the senate couldn't be dismissed so easily as labor baiting.

Your Choice of Reasons

SEVEN reasons why congress must stay in session have been discovered by The New York Times. Important bills are pending taxes must be revised, national defense must be organized economies must be started military training must be started, new events might necessitate immediate congressional action and, finally, congress shouldn't adjourn in a crisis.

This is a formidable list of reasons. The most compelling reason why congress should stay in session isn't included, however. There is not a single good reason why it should adjourn. That's the way the citizens who pay congressional salaries feel about it—and they can't be wrong.

GRAVE RESPONSIBILITY

Maybe China deserves some of her hard luck. She foisted civilization upon a carefree and innocent world.—St. Louis Star-Times.

News Behind the News

Stettinius and Knudsen Upset Tradition by Speeding Defense Program Along.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 18—Initial adventures of the big business men Knudsen and Stettinius in the strange politico-governmental factories of Washington has been something of a shock both to the business men and the statesmen.

A congressional committee nearly toppled over collectively in its leather chairs when it learned that Mr. Stettinius had appeared at his desk for his first day of work at 7:30 a. m. and is continuing the practice.

Paul Mallon

Something of the same effect was created when Mr. Knudsen dictated an immediate response in writing to a house appropriations committee request for his views about a special $200,000,000 appropriation for war department factory building in the latest $1,700,000,000 defense bill. Knudsen stated he had not had time to go thoroughly into the appropriation but he believed it was justified and should be approved, thus wholly disregarding the political implications of government in industry and the political custom which sometimes requires weeks of study before such commitments.

Free Hand

Certain minor swelling under the floor indicates a few of the reformers of the administration are actively trying to get in under the new setup but not the business men nor the government group as a whole (including the President) has given the slightest encouragement to them so far.

The business men are working through Harry Hopkins the commerce secretary and presidential confidante and Mr. Hopkins has let everyone in the government know he thinks Stettinius and Knudsen should be allowed to do the job for which they were hired.

Mutual confidence between them is suggested by the un-announced fact that the big business men are taking over for their national defense advisory commission the whole set of Hopkins six economic advisers. These are the same six for whom congress has denied salary appropriations. Their jobs with Hopkins would thus have expired July 1 had not Stettinius and Knudsen been less apprehensive of their reforming wiles than were the congressmen.

Similar confidence as expressed by Hopkins opened the way for the new defense councilors to break their first industrial bottleneck a few days after taking office. They had found that the great industrial machine of this country could produce no more than two tanks a day in its maximum effort with existing facilities. An order was placed with Republic Steel to increase this capacity by the construction of additional furnaces and reopening of old furnaces.

Few Hitches

Not that all is political sweetness and industrial light. The Corcoran-Ickes group you may recall throttled the report on the original Stettinius war industries advisory council last year on the ground that it did not take labor sufficiently into account. It never got out of the President's desk. This time however their noticeable inside activity has been confined to trying to get hold of the power phase of defense. They are trying to revive their old government grid system program.

Competent inside new quarters report the President stepped upon their suggestion as he did upon their recommendation for a vast public works defense spending program. The power end is being left by the White House upon the non-political basis originally worked out by Assistant War Secretary Louis Johnson.

How It's Working

Basically the Stettinius Knudsen group is taking the framework of the army navy munitions board for its working plan. This board surveyed 20,000 factories and planned orders for 12,000 plants on American mobilization day. Most of the personnel which worked on these secret plans has been taken over by the defense council which already has accumulated 70 to 80 employes and is acquiring more each day. Its organization expanded so rapidly that it moved out of its original cramped quarters the first week and now is amply installed in the munitions wing of the war department.

Authority

Complaint most frequently voiced when Mr. Roosevelt appointed the commission was that it lacked authority. Knudsen and Stettinius (with the backing of Hopkins) are apparently going ahead as if they had authority. The eventual scope of their work will undoubtedly be determined when they hit their first snag with Hopkins and have to go to the President for a decision on their powers.

So far their initial ventures however present a fresh inspiring picture of America in action.

Today and Tomorrow

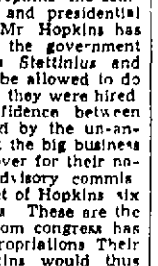
Present Situation of U. S. Discussed; Need Seen for Definite Decisions on War.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

Lippman cut and byline to go

THE situation of the United States is now as follows.

The capitulation of the French army may mean even before these lines are printed that the French navy has been surrendered to Hitler. It is certain to mean that whether France is occupied as a conquered province under a Nazi regime or whether it is permitted to maintain a nominal independence under some sort of French government the French empire in North Africa on the west coast of Africa in Asia and the French possessions in this hemisphere will be governed from Berlin. There is no power left in France capable of resisting any demand which Berlin may make.



Walter Lippmann

With the French navy surrendered trapped or conceivably scuttled with the whole of France Spain and North Africa as a base of operations the combined German and Italian naval air and land power will be available for the blockade the bombing and the invasion of the British Isles. How effectively the British can resist this assault is a question. How much they will be willing to resist is an equally serious question. If as may soon be the case the British find themselves tomorrow as the French found themselves yesterday confronted with overwhelming force in Europe and without hope of full and effective assistance from the United States even if they resist the British too may capitulate. In that event whatever part of the British navy is not sunk in battle is not scuttled and does not escape to Canada and to the Far East will fall into Hitler's hands. The British shipyards, the largest in the world will fall into his hands. Whatever government there is in the British Isles will either be a Nazi government or a puppet government under orders from Berlin.

The question that will then remain is whether there can exist an independent British government in the dominions of Canada Australia, New Zealand, South Africa in the crown colonies of Bermuda Jamaica and the like and an independent Irish state. This question is of paramount importance to the United States. For if the British and French fleets fall to Hitler and if the British and French empires in this hemisphere and on the shores of both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans become subject to his orders the United States will be isolated completely.

This situation cannot be averted by promises that we shall eventually provide the British with airplanes under the cash and carry provisions of the neutrality law. The President made that promise to M. Reynaud. It was insufficient. The Reynaud government fell and France capitulated. The same promise made to Great Britain will have no better result. The fatal defect of the promise was not merely that it offered France no real assistance immediately but more fundamentally that it did not offer the French nation a sufficient reason to hope for an eventual liberation if they endured the punishment which further resistance entailed.

In the case of Great Britain further resistance is possible in a sense in which it was not possible to France first because the British Isles can still be defended and second because the greater part of the British Empire—the dominions and the crown colonies are beyond the immediate reach of Hitler's army. They will come within his immediate reach only if the British fleet is captured and the British crown which is the center of the allegiance of the empire is destroyed or made vassal to Hitler.

In order to sustain the resistance of the British Isles, in order to provide a sufficient reason why the British fleet should in the final stage take refuge in this hemisphere in order to insure the continuing independence from Hitler's control of the dominions and of the crown colonies in this hemisphere or within striking distance of it a deeper commitment than that offered to M. Reynaud would be required. It would be necessary to enter into specific arrangements with London and with Ottawa covering the character of the assistance we are willing to give and providing for the specific measures of protection which we are willing to undertake in the Atlantic ocean and as respects the dominions and the crown colonies.

The President does not have the authority to enter into such arrangements. The United States is therefore in a position where for lack of authority in its government it is unable to take any steps to safeguard its elementary

"FORGOTTEN MEN" OF 1940

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Wednesday June 18, 1930

Dwight W. Morrow won the republican nomination for United States senator in New Jersey by a plurality of more than 267,000.

Miss Pearl Rinnert of Reed avenue left for New York City from where she was to sail on the S. S. Olympic for a tour of Europe as a member of the Vergilian pilgrimage and Aeneid cruise.

Miss Dorothy Boxwell of Green Camp, Miss Irene Oborn of Waldo and Misses Agnes and Elthia Mueller of LaRue returned to Bowling Green to resume their studies in the education department of Bowling Green State college.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Schultz of Green Camp.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Friday June 18 1920

Herbert Hoover breakfasted with Senator Harding the Republican presidential nominee at the senator's home on Wyoming avenue in Washington. The senator said he was not concerned over a referendum on the league of nations covenant advocated by President Wilson. He said "I am sure the Republican party will gladly welcome a referendum on the foreign relations of this republic and that the Republican attitude of preserving our nationality will be overwhelmingly indorsed."

Marion lodge of Elks directed the exalted ruler Charles L. Justice to forward a message to Senator Harding congratulating him on his nomination for the presidency. Mr. Harding was a member of Marion lodge.

"Say, boys and girls let's elect Harding" were the words on a large sign painted by Robert G. Cheney and placed in front of the Warren G. Harding home on Mt. Vernon avenue. The sentence was the one attributed to former Governor Frank B. Willis when he made his nominating speech for Harding at the Chicago convention. Work was begun preparing the home for the arrival of Mr. Harding with a force of men trimming the trees and doing other landscaping work. D. R. Crissinger, president of the Marion Civic association appointed Frank A. Huber and Clifford A. Owens as two additional members of the finance committee of the organization.

It was announced that Marion probably would have a consolidated railroad passenger ticket office in the business district during the Harding campaign in order to facilitate transportation.

C. B. Huntress of Washington, first secretary of the Marion Chamber of Commerce was chosen to act as secretary in charge of the Civic association's office during the campaign. Mr. Huntress had been away from Marion three years engaged in organization and publicity engineering.

L. H. Guthery chairman of the hotels and rooms committee reported his group already had a list of some 60 rooms in Marion homes which would be thrown open to visitors and that the committee was also working out a systematic plan for increasing the restaurant accomodations. Arrangements had already been made with a number of church societies to serve one or two meals a day when unusually large crowds of visitors were in Marion.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mereness and daughter Miss Anna Mereness, of Summit street went to Excelsior, Mo., for a visit.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Schram of East Columbia street.

Bucharest is known as the "city of joy" because its name is derived from the Albanian word "bukur" meaning joy.

A Horseman in Japan

One of the Four—Famine—Rides in Wake of War

By LARRY SMITH
International News Service Correspondent

TOKYO June 18—War is coming home to the Japanese. Riding on one of the chargers of the Four Horsemen Famine the ration card system of food distribution is inevitable.

Goaded into action by the urgent necessity for adjustment of food consumption, smoother distribution methods and prospects of a meager crop due to rain shortage the government is expected to begin its card rationing system before very long.

Rice charcoal, sugar and matches will perhaps follow the first rationing of cotton. The commerce and industry ministry has already drawn up the preliminary plans for rationing of foods and necessities according to the well informed Asahi newspaper.

The knottiest question facing the commissions working out the rationing system is the so-called price fixing levels. If the price established by the price fixing commission is too low the holders of the stocks will refuse to sell. Already there is a demand from the farmers for price advances on rice with their alternative that they will keep their stocks intact in their own warehouses.

Will Force Wage Rise

Such a price raise observers declare will force an increase in wages throughout the industrial world further boosting the costs of commodities on an already shrinking market due to exchange difficulties affecting foreign commerce.

However despite frantic propaganda efforts of the government, it appears that the present low price policy of the government, agencies is doomed to failure.

Rice will become the battlefield of the price fixing forces. The farmers are refusing to sell at the current prices in spite of the fact that the Agriculture and Forestry Ministry Toshio Shimada maintains that the government will never permit an advance in the price of Japan's most staple food.

Deadlocked the government has been forced to purchase its own rice at retail prices on the open market aggravating the shortage. Under these circumstances it seems that the government will never be able to maintain a sufficient supply of rice to institute the card ration system.

It appears also that a rise in the prices of charcoal matches and soy bean sauce is inevitable because of the advanced costs of materials and labor. The charcoal situation is perhaps the more acute because of the coal shortage. Most of the native cooking and heating is done by charcoal and a repetition of last winter's severe cold will cause untold suffering and hardships to the hinterland farmers.

The Asahi admits that there must be some degree of price advances in the principal commodities line if the card rationing system will work and without the system it is agreed that at least one of the legendary Four Horsemen will come galloping across the Japanese Empire this coming winter, if not before.

Historic Derrick

By The Associated Press

SAN ANGELO, Tex.—An oil-stained oil well rig soon is to have a prominent place on the University of Texas campus at Austin.

It is the derrick from the Santa Rita No. 1 well near Texon where oil first was discovered in that field. Since that day, May 23, 1928, more than $25,000,000 has flowed into the permanent endowment fund of the university from oil royalties.

The Big Lake Oil Company has presented the rig to the university as a symbol of the relationship between the oil fields and the university.

Military Training

Why, When War Makes Same Thing Necessary, Shouldn't It Be Done Before Crisis Occurs?

By DAMON RUNYON

FOR THE life of us, we cannot see why any American should object to compulsory military service for our youth when that is exactly what we will have anyway, in the event of war. We have conscription, under the more polite name of the selective service or the draft.

Yet when some months ago in this column we toyed with the idea of compulsory service reader reaction had to be filed mainly in the squawk department. Our point that every boy of military age is potentially a soldier the instant the nation declares war and that it might be a good thing if he had the benefit of a little advance training and instruction failed to make a favorable impression on the majority of our readers.

Perhaps more recent events have caused them to change their minds. Personally we think compulsory service is a certainty of the future but we also think that more important at the moment is, first, the adequate functioning of the sources of armament supply and second the raising of a big army for immediate purposes. One is useless without the other.

Damon Runyon

We think the nation should enlarge the regular army by the processes of selective draft if necessary to not less than 1,500,000 men and maintain it at that strength in the years to come eventually feeding it through the channels of compulsory service. In our opinion the 400,000 (regular army and national guard) of the present plan is pitifully inadequate.

IT IS inadequate in the one detail we deem of greatest importance in the present situation and for the future. That is the service of notice on the world that the United States is plenty ready. The size of the army now contemplated is a weak gesture in that respect. It is even weaker in view of what our military authorities say about our lack of proper equipment.

One of the great mysteries of the world's army equipment in the United States. With the greatest industrial forces on earth the greatest mechanical geniuses and the most money we never have enough army equipment even in emergencies and never seem able to get enough. We always have the greatest soldiers officers and men but never sufficient equipment. The wonder is this nation has never lost a war.

We wish one of our master minds would explain this perennial insufficiency and inadequacy of soldier equipment in the United States. It would perhaps not be surprising if we never raised any armies but we have raised a lot of them and the story has always been the same—no equipment. At least, not the right kind of equipment.

IN 1898 when we went to war against the Spaniards our armies were sent into the tropics in heavy woolen clothing with put in horse meat for food and with many of the soldiers using ancient one-chamber guns against magazine rifles. It was a hasty adventure by a nation which had not been to war in many years, so perhaps you can throw that one out.

But in 1916 when the earth trembled to the tread of marching men and the roar of guns and it was even then a fair bet that we would be involved Gen. Pershing was called upon to take his punitive expedition into Mexico with transport mules that were veterans of the Spanish-American war and dropped dead of senility on the march. There were a few planes the fliers could barely keep aloft and other equipment distinctly vintage.

A year later we mobilized a mighty army of magnificent men and sent it to France—without proper equipment. And we did that after months of frenzied activity and expenditure of fabulous sums of money. Today it is the same old story as far as equipment is concerned. Great officers, great soldiers, nothing to work with. That may make our idea of a regular army of 1,500,000 sound somewhat fantastic. But you see we are hoping that this time they really get something done.

A STRONG navy is necessary of course to a nation situated as we are and concerned chiefly with defense against invasion. That is what we have in mind too—invasion. The war in Europe has demonstrated that the enemy can fly invasion over your water defenses, and that now as always, men must eventually fight for their homes on the land.

And in the United States, we have a lot of land to defend east and west and north and south—especially south.

Farm Dollars

The American farmer is mobilized for a $10,000,000,000 'blitzkrieg' of his own in 1940.

That is the estimated total gross farm income for the year a substantial increase over 1939 as announced by Earl Cooper agricultural representative of Country Gentleman magazine.

With farmers cash income for the first quarter totaling $1,987,000,000 or 12 per cent higher than a year ago there is unanimity of opinion Cooper reported that the increase will continue based on domestic factors. Late planting he said is balanced by a normal or better than normal rainfall which throughout the northwest has gone down from 18 inches to three feet in the soil.

Winter wheat will turn out better than looked for a month ago Cooper says. "There will be considerably less acreage of winter wheat harvested but the spring wheat acreage will undoubtedly be increased somewhat, 19,425,000 acres now being predicted as compared to 19,532,000 acres last year. Corn planting intentions indicate a reduction of about 4 per cent over the 91,501,000 acres planted a year ago. There will be an increase in the soybean acreage which will offset the lower acreage of wheat and corn.

Should foreign buying speed up we are in a position to furnish them a great deal.

The European war is now becoming a more dominant factor in livestock values. With millions of pounds of Danish pork automatically eliminated from the English market, the swine picture has changed greatly.

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS

Over a tortuous roadbed, across many precarious trestles, and winding through difficult early Ohio country, the Bellaire Zanesville & Cincinnati railroad engines puffed and steamed connecting those cities.

Hills people jocularly observed that the B. Z. & C. on the cars meant 'badly zigzagged and crooked." In places the grade was 130 feet rise to the mile. At one spot there was a reverse curve on a trestle. On sharper curves the outside rail was laid three inches higher than the inside to hold cars on the tracks.

Col. John H. Sullivan of Bellaire projected the railroad, which was completed to Woodstock by 1877, all by private subscription.

The 42 miles from Woodstock to Bellaire was constructed at a cost of $11,500 a mile, including land, grading bridges and track. And it was regarded as a miracle of engineering economy.

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

Low Back Pain

A patient writes "I have been told that my sciatica is due to a protruded intervertebral disk. Will you please explain what this means?"

The backbone is composed of a series of superimposed separate bones. Between each one is a cartilaginous disk called the "intervertebral disk." Recent studies have indicated that in certain cases low back pain and sciatica may be due to dislocation of this cartilaginous disk. The condition is known as "protruded intervertebral disk."

A considerable difference of opinion has been expressed as to how often it occurs. Probably a very low percentage—not more than 2 per cent of all cases of low back pain. Such cases of sciatica or low back pain as are caused by this condition are always preceded by injury or accident. Reports say that surgical removal of the disk is followed by relief.

It certainly indicates that whoever made this diagnosis is an alert and up-to-date physician, but it is to be hoped that gossip on this subject will not spread too rapidly among nervous patients. Most cases of low back pain are relieved by manipulations and by rest, warmth, light treatment and diathermy.

DRIVER FORFEITS BOND.

Skipping a highway patrol traffic citation is a serious matter, Richard L. Jones, 21, of Clyde, learned yesterday. He was returned here Sunday night by patrolmen from the Marion substation, who reported he did not appear in court to answer a citation issued June 8 for allegedly disregarding a stop sign at the intersection of routes 4 and 23. He posted $15 bond for his release Sunday night and it was ordered forfeited when he did not appear in court for arraignment Monday morning.

Contests and games provided entertainment and awards in "yat" were won by Mrs. Louise Somerlot, Mrs. Mabel Gorman and Miss Mabel Midlam. Miss Yazel was presented a gift. Roses decorated the rooms and the honor guests' colors of blue and yellow predominated in the appointments for a lunch. The hostesses were assisted by Mrs. Ralph Wingett and Mrs. W. D. Martin. Guests included Miss Yazel, Mrs. Somerlot, Mrs. Gorman, Miss Midlam, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Wingett, Mrs. J. Eugene Auld, Mrs. R. A. Maxim, Mrs. G. M. Queen Olga Tells Madge Why She Asked for a Loan

THERE WAS such poignant humiliation in the voice of Olga once the proud and feted queen of Transylania, as she faltered she did not know when she could repay me the loan she had asked as she was penniless that for an instant I could not reply to her because my throat muscles were so constricted with pity.

If I only could have revealed to her the secret my father was guarding so carefully the astounding and arrogant message from Jack Leslie, leader of the gang threatening us that he was in possession of Olga's missing emeralds, worth literally a queen's ransom, and that he would return them when he received in exchange the persons of Noel and Mary! The restoration of those jewels would mean that she need not come to Philip Verlizen a penniless bride but would be possessed of a comfortable fortune in herself and her daughter as the emeralds were of almost fabulous value.

But I did not dare give her the slightest hint of my knowledge. My father had been most insistent on that point. He did not wish to raise hopes that might not be fulfilled but he also was taking no chances of entrusting the secret to anyone outside of those of us associated with him.

Instead I made my voice authoritative and cheery.

Queen Olga Accepts

Listen to me, Olga," I said firmly. "You're getting a wrong slant on this thing and taking it altogether too seriously. You're only asking of me what I would freely ask of you if our positions were reversed. And I am in a peculiarly fortunate position just now. A sum of money which I gave out as a loan has just been returned to me. I do not need it. If I do not turn it over to you it will go back into the bank. It is a reserve which I never touch for myself but which I use occasionally to help out a friend in need."

I mentally asked forgiveness for the false impression I was giving her but felt shriven when I saw her face lighted up with relief.

"You put it so beautifully," she said. "I do not feel humiliated now. But I must tell you all about it."

She paused as if she were marshaling her words and then went swiftly on.

"You know that I have promised to marry Phil," she said, and there was a softness in her voice which betrayed the joy that was hers at this renewal of her youthful romance.

"Yes, I know," I returned as she paused.

"He wants it to be soon," she said, "inside of a month, but—" she hesitated—"he is insisting that I permit him to buy my wedding gown, in fact my whole outfit and Olina's."

"He cannot understand," poor Phil," she went on tenderly, "that I simply cannot do what he wishes. But I haven't the slightest idea what things cost over here, so I do not know how much money I'll need."

"Where do you wish to be married?" I hope here with us."

"I am sorry," she said, "but I must be married in the church of my faith, that of the hereditary house of Transylania, and there is no church of this faith nearer than New York. After the ceremony I believe Phil wishes to have a reception at a hotel, but I hope to persuade him out of that. Just a little dinner with you, dear people, Katharine and the Underwoods—that is what I wish. I know what kind of dresses I will need—but I have no idea of their probable cost."

"But I can find that out easily," I told her reassuringly. "When you go back to your room make out a list of everything you will require down to the handkerchiefs. And—I warn you, don't stint on numbers for if you do I shall increase your allotment. Then we'll add a liberal sum for emergencies and for your pocket money when you are first married. Remember it will be all right if you do not repay me for years—or ever—for that matter."

Much of the present work is done in connection with the construction of the 50-building south village at Leesville. Later extensive conservation activity will be undertaken.

Applications for enrollment in the experience center may be filed with Mr. Roesner at the NYA office in the Y. M. C. A. building on south state street. City and county youths are eligible to apply for the vacancies to be filled through the local office, Mr. Roesner reported.

Former Marion Man in Group Making Newspaper Printing Problem Study

F. Lester Yeager One of Six on National Committee.

New laurels in addition to those he has won in recent months were accorded F. Lester Yeager, production manager of the Indianapolis Star and former head of the stereotyping and press room of The Marion Star, at the fourteenth mechanical conference of the American Newspaper Publishers association in Chicago last week.

Mr. Yeager was named a member of a research committee to direct studies in connection with some of the unsolved problems of newspapers centering around stereotyping and press room problems. Only six persons were appointed to the committee, the others being John J. Shea, mechanical chief of the Hearst papers, A. H. Burns, mechanical superintendent of the New York Herald Tribune, John Burke of the Gannett Newspapers, Rochester, N. Y.; Leon Link of the Cleveland Plain Dealer; and John Park, production manager of the Chicago Tribune. The appointments were made last week.

Mr. Yeager also spoke on the program of last week's meeting in Chicago, taking part in the discussion of stereotype room problems.

Previously Mr. Yeager had been appointed chairman of the association's mechanical conference sub-committee in charge of the stereotype division for the 1939 program of the conference in Philadelphia. After that work was completed, the president of the association, with the approval of the board appointed Mr. Yeager a member of the mechanical committee of the organization for a term of five years. It was the mechanical conference of the organization that met last week in Chicago.

Individual research work extending over a period of years and reported in talks by Mr. Yeager at meetings in the last two years of groups concerned with the mechanical problems of newspaper publishing first gave him prominence in the mechanical section of the national publishers' group.

Last year he originated "perfumed advertisements," mixing perfume into the ink used to print an advertisement of a perfume. The appearance of the scented advertisement in the Indianapolis paper attracted nationwide attention and was widely reported in trade papers related to advertising and printing.

PASSPORTS NOT REQUIRED FOR ENTRANCE TO CANADA

County Clerk of Courts Gets Ruling from Washington.

Marion county residents who are planning vacations in Canada will not need passports, Clerk of Courts Carl F. Haberman has been informed in a letter from R. B. There has been considerable misunderstanding because of recent announcement of new regulations effective July 1. These regulations apply only to aliens, requiring them to have passports or other evidence of identity and nationality and also to have visas from U. S. consular officers.

Mr. Shipley advised Mr. Haberman that any one leaving the United States without an American passport should have documentary evidence of his American citizenship. A naturalized citizen should carry his naturalization certificates. Native-born Americans should take their birth certificates, baptismal certificates or affidavits from reputable persons, testifying to American birth.

FLAG DAY THEME OF BOWLING GREEN GRANGES

A flag day program was the theme of the meetings of Bowling Green grange and Bowling Green Juvenile grange Friday night at the hall south of LaRue.

Final preparations were made by the senior grange for an ice cream social Saturday night June 15. A program under the direction of Miss Gladys Rosebrough consisted of a song and a paper, "Flag Etiquette" by Mrs. Bertha Williams reading, Ralph Wilson, flag drill, young peoples' drill, recitation, "This America of Ours and the Farmers' Part in the Government" Dorothy Louise Rabaugh reading, "Peace and Prosperity" by Eaton Williams; prayer and a song, "God Bless America" W. O. Oberdier.

Following the program a potluck supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sickmiller were presented gifts in honor of their wedding.

The program opened with singing of "America." A lighted cake was presented to Jack Olson. Mabel Freshour had charge of a program consisting of recitations as follows: "My Neighbor Next Door" by Lois Jean Grapp; "The Wind and I" by Winefred Jones, "My Garden" by Jack Olson, "Aren't Men Funny" by Raymond Wilson, "The Package of Seeds" by Ruth Moore, "A Prayer for America" by Bob Winslow and "My House" by Mabel Freshour.

The juveniles will present children's day program June 28.

O. W. U. Faculty Concerned About Camp in Canada

Special to The Star

DELAWARE, O., June 18—The international situation may present a problem to a group of Ohio Wesleyan university faculty members and their families who own a summer camp near Blind River, Ontario, Canada. Dr. Gilbert H. Barnes, professor of economics, and George Gauthier, director of athletics, started the project in 1926. Yesterday they expressed the opinion little trouble will be faced in crossing the border as long as the group enters Canada at Sault Sainte Marie, 90 miles west of Blind River.

"The customs officers there knew us very well," Dr. Barnes said. "They've seen us come and go for 14 summers. They know us as friends."

Three of the group of campers are Canadian-born but are now American citizens. They include Gauthier, who was born near Blind River and Dean and Mrs. Harold J. Sheridan. Mrs. Sheridan is president of the Battle Point association, the official name of the colony which holds a deed to the property from the crown. Battle Point, around which the camp is built, was named for the last Indian battle fought in that section.

The Better Way to Correct Constipation

One way to treat constipation is to endure it first and "cure" it afterward. The other way is to avoid having it by getting at its cause. So why not save yourself those dull headachy days, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can do it by a simple common-sense "ounce of prevention"?

If your trouble, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, "the better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy, toasted, ready-to-eat cereal has just the "bulk" you need. If you eat it regularly—and drink plenty of water—you can not only get regular but keep regular, day after day and month after month! All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

High Tide —

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Ruth knows of ... Murray of Edinburgh, ... may be able to help Lance. ... and Jan decide to pool ... money. As Jan is preparing ... for New York, Rose and ... show up.

CHAPTER THIRTY-TWO

Goodby To Sea Tide

JENNY ran a nervous hand ... his sleek hair. "Oh, we'll ... out all right, Rose and me. ... guess we're two of a kind, and ... be a big help to me when I ... my own band and my own ... I ever do. But what wor... me is she don't get alimony ... more and she don't make an ... hit at the Club and already ... raving around about clothes. ... Jan, I'm afraid I'll never ... enough money to keep her ... ied."

"Then why did she marry you?" ... demanded with asperity, an... and embarrassed at John... confidences.

... answer was blunt enough. ... were both a little tight. Oh," ... added hastily, seeing the shock ... her eyes, "we were far from ... but we wouldn't have done ... at least not then, if we hadn't ... several cocktails."

"... that is true," Jan said angri... "you're pretty much of a cad ... admit it to anybody!"

"There you go again with your ... ism, or whatever you call it, ... he accused. "Oh, I'm crazy ... her, all right, but I know ... well she'll never stick by ..."

"You might be wrong. Anyhow, you're speaking of your wife and I don't like your attitude."

A stubborn, defiant expression wiped the usual bland look from his face. "Jan, you must be either blind or stupid! What I'm trying to tell you is the whole thing is a mistake. I thought I wanted sophistication and I've found out I don't. All the time I really wanted someone sweet and wholesome and good like you. I'm still in love with you, Jan. This is just infatuation. Will you give me a chance? I'll divorce Rose and start over again."

"Not with me, you won't!" she snapped. "You're completely despicable, Johnny. Don't bother coming here again." She turned and ran to the kitchen, enormously relieved when he did not follow. Yet, upset as she was, she would have been much more so if she had listened in on the conversation between Rose and Lance upstairs.

"So that's how it happened," Rose finished, duplicating her husband's story, but with more finesse, to Lance. She sat on the arm of his chair a forlorn siren turned out in a flue flannel slack suit with a gay silk scarf tied over her black hair. Her gorgeous hazel eyes brooded with resentment. She raged inwardly because all of her well-laid plans had misfired. The fact of her marriage to Johnny effectively cut her off from opportunity. Too, she had been irked and piqued by Lance's claim acceptance of her marriage. She wanted admiration and consolation. Her vanity demanded it. So, thoughtlessly, selfishly, she again sought to awaken a flame of desire in Lance.

"I'm just sick about the whole mess, Lance, and I don't know quite where to turn or what to do. I thought you might advise me."

"Hoping And Praying"

He said heavily, resenting the fact that she could still move him, sway his emotions. "There isn't anything I could say to you now, Rose. I'm leaving for New York tomorrow for a consultation with Doctor Murray. If he can do anything about these legs of mine I'll be flying again, and if I fly again I'll have plenty of money. If he can't do anything, well—"

"Then I'll be hoping and praying for you," she whispered, putting her soft, powdered cheek against his. "I cared for you so much, Lance, but I couldn't see any way out for either of us. And Jan insisted I upset you. She thought I should stay away from you. That's why I changed, why I tried to make you believe I was hard and greedy and grasping. I'm not—really. I want what most women want and what I've never had a chance to have: a husband I love, a home and children. Johnny is just a boy who's in love with his music and himself. It won't work out, Lance, it can't!

He felt his defenses crumbling. She was lovely, exotic, exciting. The perfume from her hair intoxicated him; the nearness of her slim self incited him to dream of a future wherein he would again master space and have a beautiful woman for his wife.

He lifted his thin face and kissed her lips hungrily. "I love you," he said in a low, tortured voice. "I thought I'd recovered from you, but I haven't."

Neither of them heard the door open, then close again, but Norma had seen and heard enough to hurry her to her room white-faced and stricken.

"You fool," she said. "You poor, precious, idiotic fool!"

Jerking a tissue from a drawer she scrubbed at her face, removing lipstick and rouge and most of the powder. With a stiff hairbrush she straightened out the waves in her hair and pinned it into a severe roll, took off her bright summer clothes and donned her sensible tweeds, added the finishing touch of glasses.

To Jan's surprised inquiry, she stated levelly: "I'm getting back into my schoolteacher role, Jan. My school opens in two weeks, you know."

"But I thought you were going to New York with Lance and me?" Jan protested, bewildered.

Norma, by determined effort, kept her voice calm. "It might mean losing my job here and having to wait until next semester for another school somewhere if I left now. No, Jan, I'll stay on here until you come back. I'll look after the house and the cat and—you see, this is best"

"No, I don't see, still if it's what you want, Norma." Jan felt sure something had happened to disturb again the pleasant, tranquil relationship of Norma and Lance. Her apprehension was further increased when she visited Lance after Rose and Johnny had gone and found him flushed and on edge, but noncommital. The only clue he gave her was the remark:

"Rose is calling for us in the morning. She offered to drive us to the railroad station in town. Her car is comfortable and it'll save the bother of Frank going along to carry me from the interurban into a taxi and then on the train. Oh, Jan, the doctor has got to fix me up. I don't want to go on living if I can't walk!"

Rose, Again

Tears misted her eyes. "I was fearful of this," she murmured. "You promised, Lance, you said it wouldn't make any difference—"

"You don't understand," he told her bitterly.

"But I do understand," she thought, going to her own room. It was Rose again. Oh, Lance deserved better than this. She doubted if Rose could give love to any man. And Norma must have seen or heard something.

"I'd like to take a stick to that Rose!" Jan snapped. Then it occurred to her that although she was, literally, her brother's keeper, she had no right to be, figuratively. Lance was nearly thirty-one years old. Certainly it was his right to make his own choice, his own decisions. "But not at Norma's expense! And no matter what I promised Norma, I'm going to tell Lance it's her money providing this chance for him!"

In the morning Jan insisted Frank come with them to the train, determined not to leave Rose and Lance alone for even a moment. Ruth Cronin appeared at the station to assure them she had persuaded Mr. Sobol, the store manager, to write Doctor Murray by air mail, asking that he see Lance at his earliest convenience.

Frank ensconced Lance as comfortably as possible in the drawing room compartment on the train, kissed Jan's cheek goodby, and handed her a heap of hastily-selected magazines and a basket of fruit.

"You look grand," Ruth told her, admiring the tailored suit with matching topcoat and perky suede hat she had chosen for her. The outfit was a deep blue nubby tweed and the hat and shoes were a lighter shade of blue. Jan, at Ruth's insistence, had had her hair shaped and waved by a master beautician at Bislock's and the result was not the Jan of Sea Tide, but a new and superbly smart young person who, as far as appearance was concerned, would hold her own with any one of New York's charmers.

Rose lingered on a moment, hoping Jan would leave her a moment with Lance, but Jan began to unpack and arrange their traveling things and exhibited no slightest intention of leaving. Yet she could not help seeing the way Lance clung to Rose's slender hands, bordered as always, at the wrists, by jangling bracelets.

The train began slowly to move and Rose had to go.

After awhile, when the train rolled perkily through the city's outskirts, Lance asked indifferently, "Why did Norma change her mind about going with us?"

"Her school, I guess. She didn't want to lose it."

"Of course," he said, relieved. "You didn't tell me, but I know you must have borrowed money from Frank or Ruth."

She didn't answer, but he now seemed, in his abstraction, not to notice. "I won't tell him yet," she thought, her lips setting into a somewhat grim line.

They had been in New York for five days, chafing, impatient, when Doctor Murray's secretary called them at the small hotel near Central Park, where Ruth Cronin had directed them, and said the Doctor would see Mr. Merriner tomorrow morning at eleven.

STOCK PRICES MOVE HIGHER

Defense Spending and British Orders Chief Prop. Wall Street Brokers Say.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 18—Prices were on the upgrade in today's stock market despite persistence of war gloom in Wall Street.

The principal bullish prop, brokers said, remained in the outlook for heavy defense spending and augmented demands by the British for military materials.

Carrier loans, inactive for some time, were given a brisk push in the bond department. German and Italian dollar securities again were higher. Commodities were mixed. "Free" sterling resumed its fall.

Stocks ahead the greater part of the day included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Republic, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber, Goodyear, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, United Aircraft, American Telephone, Western Union, Anaconda, Du Pont, Loft and Allied Chemical.

Steels maintained their popularity as mill operations in this field rapidly were approaching capacity operations.

MISS HARRIET SOSEY DIES AT HOME HERE

Lifelong Marion Resident Passes Away at 83.

Miss Harriet Emeline Sosey, 83, a lifelong resident of Marion, died today at 8:03 a. m. at her home at 188 Patten street after a long illness.

There are no close survivors, her parents and eight brothers and sisters having preceded her in death.

She was born in Marion on Oct. 10, 1856, daughter of Joseph Sosey, a native of Maryland, and Laura Ann Harwood, who was born in New York state.

She was a member of the Christian church.

WHEAT TRADING LIGHT ON CHICAGO MARKET

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 18—Wheat futures drifted aimlessly over a narrow range most of the session today in a light volume of trade. After opening as much as 1⅞ cents higher, profit taking turned prices lower and after the first half hour wheat dropped back to about ¼ cent above yesterday's closing levels.

Just before the close the market again turned slightly higher but most traders turned cautious and seemed content to sit on the side lines awaiting an announcement from the axis powers concerning peace terms for the French.

Wheat closed unchanged to ¾ cents higher than yesterday, July 77⅞, September 78¾-¼, and corn was ½ to ¾ up, July 61⅛, September 59¾, oats ¼-¾ lower, soy beans ¼ off to ¼ up, and rye ⅝ to ¾ lower.
